Travel Bio:

Formed in 1997 with Hart/Callahan/Morelock as an outlet for Hart's growing catalog of poetry, the band released their first album "Opus Oil Slick # Same Said" in 1998. The album was recorded in four days with tracks built in layers from improvisations. Having found the process successful, the band added bassist Appleby for the 2000 release "This Is Our ~Music." Considered their finest record to date, the band dropped any conceptual pretensions and focused on ripping punk guitars and blistering noise. This continued through 2002's "Me & My Friend Noise," a slightly less successful collection recorded in just one day and tricked out in a computer over 10 months. Deciding to step back from their noisy cliff, the band released the ambient instrumental guitar album "A Sleep + A Wake" also in 2002 to general confusion. Focusing on other projects, the band did not record again until mid-2006, choosing only to release a collection of unused tracks under the title "B^Sides" in 2005. In February 2008, the live album "Travel Comes @live" was released. "Spoken Wor[l]d" is the first album of new material since 2002.
